Summary of scientific research

With more than 15 years of experience working for the economic, social and institutional development of Latin America and the Caribbean at the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB), Gustavo Beliz has become one of the regional leaders in innovation for inclusive growth. There, he also served as the Director of the Institute for the Integration of Latin America and the Caribbean (INTAL). He has devoted his life to public service, serving on three occasions as Minister in the National Cabinet of Argentina (Interior and Justice, Security and Human Rights; and Secretary of Strategic Affairs, with ministerial range) and once as Secretary of the President of the Nation

(Public Management, and Strategic Affairs) in three different national governments.

Currently, he is Governor of Argentina in the Board of Governors of the IDB, the World Bank, the Development Bank of Latin America (CAF), FONPLATA, the Central American Bank for Economic Integration, FIDA, and the African Development Bank. He has designed, directed and evaluated loan and technical cooperation projects, as well as advised governments in more than 90% of the IDB's borrowing countries, having multiplied the citizen security portfolio by six after leading that team for 5 years. As head of INTAL-BID, he developed an innovative agenda that connects new technologies, fair trade, physical infrastructure, education and regional integration, where he shows the positive synergies that smart policies can establish between the public and private sectors to strengthen social inclusion, sustainable growth and empowerment of women.

Since 2021 he has chaired the Economic and Social Council of Argentina, which aims to discuss the main challenges of the country's reality, and set a medium and long-term development roadmap to overcome them.

His long career also includes experience as a leader in the Electoral Observation Mission of the Organization of American States (OAS), President of the National Institute of Public Administration of Argentina, Representative of the Legislature of the City of Buenos Aires and consultant to different multilateral development agencies, such as the World Bank or USAID. Highly recognized for his commitment to transparency and many times awarded for his achievements as a national and international civil servant, this graduate of the University of Buenos Aires and Chevening Research Fellow of the London School of Economics (LSE) has been able to build strong leadership in large corporations linking evidence-based knowledge with efficient and innovative management.

He has also published 22 books and given over 400 keynote lectures around the world on development, on topics ranging from the 4.0 Economy to social inequality and global environmental challenges.
